Optional Concentrations: Students may either declare a general major in Philosophy and Religious Studies (detailed on the previous page) or elect to add a concentration in one of two different areas (see below). Concentrations allow students to demonstrate expertise in an academic area related to a field they might pursue in graduate or professional school (e.g., pre-law students might pick Ethics and Social Justice, while students bound for seminary might choose Religious Literacy).

Concentrations do not increase the total number of hours required for the major (27 hours total). The courses in the concentrations below count toward the three upper-level courses and three elective that are required by the major (which are taken in addition to the required courses indicated on the previous page.)

Please indicate which concentration and see requirements on the next page.
